

GLOBAL INDIRECT TAX

Indirect taxes such as VAT (Value Added Tax), customs duties and environmental taxes all have a direct impact on your business. Making well informed global business decisions can boost your profitability and minimise risk. Our indirect tax consultants help you plan strategically to reduce your indirect tax costs—establishing efficient indirect tax structures, preventing leakage and averting the negative effects of non-compliance.

OUR PERSPECTIVE

Today's global and domestic businesses have to contend with indirect taxes at almost every turn: in VAT, sales and use taxes, registration duties, insurance premium taxes and environmental taxes, to name a few. An inadequate approach to indirect tax can increase operating costs through leakage, negative cash flow, penalties, compliance failures and more—ultimately jeopardising profitability.

Your business model can affect your indirect tax liabilities. Outsourcing, for example, creates an environment in which VAT issues arise as a matter of course. The same is true for cross-border service delivery. We identify opportunities for you to reorganise your operations to ensure compliance and improve your indirect tax position, removing drag on ROI and accelerating your decision-making process.

OUR APPROACH

Managing indirect taxes effectively requires deep knowledge of a company's business model, internal organisation and supply chain—and of the industry in which it operates. Our senior team of indirect tax experts establishes this understanding of your business and works with your own internal tax department to choose the best technical route for you. Our understanding of local regulations and their cross-border implications helps you become more proactive. Our independence advantage means we can act quickly to deliver the answers you need and avoid audit-based conflicts.

PRACTICAL ADVICE, RESPONSIVELY DELIVERED

When entering a new market, successful competition demands that you come to a quick understanding of the indirect taxes involved. Taxand's tax experts give more than advice: we stand by you and assist with implementation to ensure you get the best results from our engagement.
