General : Transfer Pricing Framework

Malta is relatively new to transfer pricing since subsidiary legislation implementing formal Transfer Pricing Rules "TR Rules" were published in November 2022. The TP Rules will be effective from 1 January 2024 and apply to cross-border related party arrangements entered into on or after such date, including any arrangements entered into before that date which would have been materially changed thereafter.

The TP Rules will apply to arrangements between related parties or associated entities defined as having 50% or more common direct or indirect participation rights in multinational groups in scope for CbCR, or 75% in the case of multinationals excluded from such reporting. SMEs as defined by the EU State Aid Regulations fall outside the scope.

Accepted Transfer Pricing Methodologies

Further guidance is expected on the preferred transfer pricing methodologies since the TP Rules published so far only make reference to the arm's length principle. It is expected that methodologies accepted by the OECD Guidelines will also be acceptable to the Maltese tax authorities.

Transfer Pricing Documentation Requirements

Similar to the above, the transfer pricing documentation requirements are expected to be included in the official guidelines, which are yet to be published.

Local Jurisdiction Benchmarks

The TP Rules do not contain benchmarks or benchmarking requirements, but the guiding principle is the arm's length principle. It is yet to be seen whether the official guidelines will adopt the OECD TP Guidelines in conducting financial updates on an annual basis. This seems unlikely, especially in those cases where a business activity does not undergo any significant changes.

Advance Pricing Agreement "APA"/Bilateral Advance Pricing Agreement "BAPA" Overview

The TP Rules provide for the issuance of unilateral transfer pricing arrangements (referred to as unilateral transfer pricing rulings) as well as bilateral or multilateral APAs against a fee of €3,000 for APAs and a fee of €5,000 for a BAPA or a multilateral APA. An APA or BAPA is valid for a period of 5 years but a directly interested party must notify the tax authorities of any relevant material changes within 30 days from the latter of the date of its occurrence or the date from when such party becomes aware thereof. Also, a unilateral transfer pricing ruling shall have no effect as from the date on which the Maltese tax authorities notify the directly interested party that a relevant material change (as defined in the TP Rules) has taken place.

APAs and BAPAs may be renewed provided the application for renewal is made during the 6 months preceding the expiry and against a fee of €1,000 in the case of APAs and a fee of €2,000 for a BAPA or a multilateral APA.

A request for an APA may be made in connection with the tax treatment of a cross-border arrangement commencing on or after the date that the request was made. However, if the relevant arrangement has already commenced, the scope of the request may be extended to transactions, agreements and dealings that took place within 3 years and that form part of that arrangement.

The tax authorities may withhold the issuing of an APA where the interested party is not up-to-date in its filing obligations with respect to tax returns.

Transfer Pricing Audits

The TP Rules do not contain any specific provisions with respect to transfer pricing audits but these may be carried out by virtue of the powers contained in the income tax legislation.

Transfer Pricing Penalties

The TP Rules do not contain any specific provisions for transfer pricing penalties.

Local Hot Topics and Recent Updates

Given that the TP Rules are new and not yet in force, there are no local hot topics or recent updates. However, taxpayers eagerly await the publication of the guidelines since the TP Rules contain very little or no information especially with respect to transfer pricing methodologies and relevant documentation obligations.
