Navigating US Tariffs and Indirect Taxes: Mitigating Costs and Optimizing Supply Chains for Asian Businesses

This session will explore how Asian businesses can navigate the impact of U.S. tariffs, particularly those implemented in 2025 under the "America First Trade Policy," which has had a significant effect on the economies of Asia. Key discussion points include:

- Understanding Tariff Impacts: Analyze the effects of the U.S. tariffs on Asian exporters.
- Tax Optimization Strategies: Explore tax-efficient restructuring of supply chains, such as relocating production to countries with lower tariffs or leveraging free trade zones in Asia to reduce duty impacts.
- Leveraging Regional Trade Agreements: Examine opportunities to mitigate tariff impacts by utilizing ASEAN's upgraded Trade in Goods Agreements or RCEP to enhance intra-regional trade and reduce reliance on the U.S. market.
- Managing Retaliatory Tariff Risks: Provide strategies for anticipating and mitigating the impact of retaliatory tariffs from Asian countries, including diversifying markets to Southeast Asia.

Transfer Pricing Strategies for Multinationals in Asia

This session will focus on best practices for aligning transfer pricing policies with OECD guidelines and local regulations. It will emphasize the importance of ensuring that your transfer pricing models reflect your business reality. Drawing on regional insights, this session will highlight:

- Regulatory trends across Asia, including Thailand, India, Indonesia, Vietnam, the Philippines, and Singapore.
- Strategic transfer pricing models that align with business and economic realities.
- Practical approaches to mitigate disputes, optimize cash and tax positions, and future-proof against regulatory changes.

Through real-world case studies and regional comparisons, participants will gain a clear understanding of how transfer pricing can be leveraged not only to maintain compliance but also to support strategic growth, enhance operational efficiency, and manage risks effectively.
